ABOUT SHAD HATCHING.

THE POQUONOCK PROPAGATION SCHEME A SUCCESS.

Close of the Experiments Reached Satisfactorily—Over 400,000 Fry. The experiments that have been made by the fish and game commissioners to see if shad could be successfully propagated in the Farmington river, which commenced on June 4, closed on last Saturday evening. There being no fish ways in the dams so that the fish could go up into the head water and deposit their spawn in the natural way and out of the reach of their numerous enemies, it was deemed necessary that artificial propagation should be substituted.

Although the experiments were not commenced until the height of the spawning season was passed and considering the inconveniences of low water and at times a scarcity of huck shad, the season has been quite successful and four hundred and six thousand fry have been hatched and deposited in the retaining pond, to be liberated about October, when the fish are expected to be three or four inches long and capable of evading their enemies of their egg state.

The fry which were deposited a month ago are now about an inch long, the latest deposits being about one-third that size. It is the hope and belief of the fish commission that the Farmington river once yielded so much good fish will in the near future be brought back to a healthy state and furnish food and sport for the fishermen. The commissioners were lucky in obtaining for the experiments one of the purest bodies of fresh water in Connecticut, fed by a never failing brook. Previous to the experiment the pond was entirely emptied of water, the sides and bottom dredged and cleaned, all the enemies of the shad exterminated and refilled with fresh, sweet water. The large building adjoining the pond, the property of the Hatheway estate, came very handy as a hatchery and here five jars of the McDonald patent was used for the purposes of propagation.

The operation was conducted under the superintendence of James A. Sterling of Lyme, who is a grandson of Commissioner Bill, and who has had five years' experience as a fish hatcher. Mr. Sterling, though a young man, is thoroughly informed in every detail of the business and courteously detailed every incident connected with the experiments to a Hartford "Post" reporter. He has great faith in the value of retaining ponds as an accessory to the propagation of fish and gives very intelligent reasons for his inference. He surmises that at least two-thirds of the hatched shad will grow to maturity, and as there is a natural tendency to return to their early resort among the finny tribe, it will be good news to the people of Poquonock and Windsor to expect that their beautiful river may abound in a plentiful supply of shad again in a few days.

Commissioner Collins of Hartford was present a part of every day and saw that the experiments were faithfully made, and it is the intention of the commissioners if their plans are successful to use the same pond next and succeeding years in the propagation of other valuable table fish.

DEATHS IN JUNE.

953 Reported in Connecticut and 89 in Hartford.

There were 953 deaths reported in the state during June. This was 125 less than in May, and one more than the average number of deaths in June for the five years preceding the present.

The death rate was 15.1 for the large towns; for the small towns 11.5, and 14.1 for the whole state.

The deaths from zymotic disease were 172, being 18 per cent. of the total mortality. The deaths in Hartford were 89, a death rate of 16 on a basis of 60,000 population. The percentage of deaths under five years of age to the total mortality was 19.1. They are classified as follows: Cerebro-spinal fever, diphtheria and croup, pneumonia, 1 each; whooping-cough, bronchitis, 2 each; typhoid fever, 6; diarrhoea (under 5) 7, over 5 4; consumption, 13; diseases of nervous system, 16; heart disease, 7; accidents and violence, 8; all other diseases, 21; still births, 5.

Cases of infectious disease were reported by the health officers as follows: Measles 105, no deaths; scarlet fever 72, 6 deaths; cerebro-spinal fever, 13 cases, 12 deaths; diphtheria and croup, 44 cases, 20 deaths; whooping-cough, 59 cases, 11 deaths; typhoid fever, 29 cases, 16 deaths.

Thirty-two medical practitioners were registered by the state for the health during June. Two were registered in this city, Dr. Emil G. Reinert, a graduate of the Baltimore Medical college, and Aloisia Kratzky, a midwife, who was examined by the Connecticut Medical society.

THE BUTCHERS' ASSOCIATION.

An interesting meeting held last evening—Further Preparations for the Coming Big Barbecue—The Committee. The New Haven Butchers' association held a meeting in the Insurance building that evening, which was largely attended by the members. The meeting was an open one and during the evening an address was given by I. V. Stillman of Danbury, the president of the state association. The several committees who have in charge the fourth annual barbecue to be held at Scheutzen park on Thursday, August 22, made report of progress.

There will be two divisions of the parade, the first division to be composed of the retail butchers and the second division of the business men in other lines of trade. The chief marshal will be Chris. Richards, and his assistants will be Oscar Boettcher. The cooking at the park will be in charge of Mr. Bliz of Bridgeport. The carving by George Rotman. The following are the committees: Music, A. D. Redding, J. Hauser, E. Endruse; tickets, Adam Sattig, W. Johnson, G. J. Burt; advertising, J. McKay, J. C. Nesbitt, W. M. Tuttle; reception, G. H. Pfaff, W. Gleason, G. J. Burt; badges, George Rutter, W. W. Johnson; purchasing, J. G. Pohlman, Oscar Boettger.

The seventh annual convention of the Retail Butchers' Protective association of Connecticut will be held in Meriden on Tuesday, September 5. The barbecue from indications, will be the most successful one ever given in this city.

NEWS FROM PROFESSOR FOWLER.

He Writes to Friends in America From Oxford, England.

News has been received that Prof. F. A. Fowler, organist at St. Paul's church, arrived safe and sound in Southampton Saturday morning, July 8. He writes that they had remarkable weather all the way, concerts in the saloon every evening and a jolly time generally. He went on the American line steamer Berlin. The letter from him was postmarked Oxford, which was the first stopping place in the Evangelical's church music tour. The party of organists, of which Prof. Fowler is one, visited several of the college chapels of Oxford university, where there are some of the finest organs in England.

ENOJED.

Pleasant Evening at Pawson Park.

The managers of the Margurite are to be highly complimented for the pleasant moonlight excursions which are being given every Thursday evening to Pawson Park. About 100 persons were on the boat last evening. Upon arrival at the park a very social dance was given, which included a great number of guests who are camping near by. The boat did not return until about 11 o'clock, which gave plenty of time for an enjoyable evening at the park.

Is Growing Rapidly.

General David Humphrey's branch, Connecticut Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, is having an unusual accession of members and more applications are to be acted upon at the next meeting. Application blanks may be obtained from Professor William E. Chandler, the secretary. The growth of this patriotic society is very gratifying. It numbers now nearly one hundred members.

Suppose you try it!
